High in the trees of Evergreen Park the winds whisper the story of Kane High.

*On the heights of the Alleghenies
Stands a high school fair.
There, among great trees abiding Pine scent in the air—*

*There, all nature in its glory
In summer green, in winter hoary—
Tells the seasons' wondrous story;
Hail to Old Kane High.*

FOREWORD

Trees have a story to tell to those who will listen. One sees them growing and passing through various stages like ourselves. Among them are no racial or class prejudices; they live in harmony. Many of the trees in Evergreen Park when first planted were strange to this region just as each year newcomers are unfamiliar with the ways of Kane High. As time went on, these same trees grew to become familiar landmarks as if they had always belonged. So it is with students. As they progress through the high school years and finally emerge as seniors, they too have left their mark at Kane High.

Through the years the high school building has been enlarged, the athletic field has been developed, students, faculty, and administrators have come and gone. The trees and the pond in Evergreen Park have witnessed and reflected all these changes and have become, as it were, a backdrop for the busy stage that is Kane High. Thus EVERGREEN PARK with these sentinels of time, inspiring to all of us, is a natural theme for the 1952 HURRI-KANE.

A Bird's-Eye View

Much too quickly our summer sports and sprees became only memories as school opened to claim our days. About 75 Jewett students joined our ranks. The first week or so was spent in taking care of schedules and activities that would help make this year an enjoyable one. Student Council sponsored a get-acquainted dance after which school settled down to classes, intramural competition, and participation in the activities program. In no time at all football season came and went, leaving in its wake an impressive number of victories that was to highlight the fall season. Finally, Thanksgiving vacation came into sight, a milestone in the school year and a harbinger foretelling the long, cold winter that drew nearer and nearer.

Of the Days Spent

Winter suddenly engulfed Kane High in a swirl of snowflakes and dropping temperature. Coats and boots were donned along with buoyant spirits. The members of the senior play cast diligently rehearsed their lines and gestures for "Best Foot Forward," which was a big success and brought Washington into sight. The Snowball became a reality as Ed Rudler and Harriet Wilson reigned over the festivities in a snow-covered gym. As we saw winter reluctantly yielding to the signs of approaching spring, the basketball team emerged triumphant in the mountain league, placing the eighth olive wreath upon the brows of K.H.S. The J.V.'s closed their season with the unprecedented record of all wins.

(1) Smitty applies the finishing touch to Jim for "Best Foot Forward." (2) Don presents white Christmas baskets to Salvation Army. (3) Max, Cleon, and Dave become Santa's little helpers for N.H.S. (4) Brass Choir braves snowstorm to play Christmas carols at Ludlow, Kane, and Mt. Jewett. (5) Rudler tries for a bucket, down under.

In and Around Kane High

Nature smiled benignly on winter weary students by bringing the joys of spring with her gentle breezes, tender buds, and spontaneous songs of happiness from her tiny, feathered messengers. K. H. S. took on a new look; winter woes were soon forgotten. National Honor bestowed upon a chosen few the privilege of becoming a part of their select group.

In March the junior class netted a handsome profit from "Life of the Party," which received very high acclaim. Also around this time white clad figures were seen running around the park, getting themselves in top condition for the tough track season they faced.

Now events happened quickly, the juniors decked themselves as well as the gym in gala costumes and danced to the music of the Blue Knights. Hurri-Kanes made their appearance, and then came the dreaded day of final exams! These were not so terrible as had been anticipated for most of us were prepared. Graduation closed the door on school-day memories but opened the door to the future and whatever it had in store. And finally, that never to be forgotten time that meant the last day of school.

(1) Bill Miller helps himself to a lump of sugar at the N.H.S. tea. (2) Mr. Dill shoots an apple off Dick Johnson's head, William Tell style. (3) "I don't want any more trouble from any of you." (4) Mildred, alias Harriet Wilson, talks with Charles Collier. (5) Max clears the bar at five feet. (6) Van checks off the "unknowns." (7) Char, Phil, Bev, and Jo pack shoe-box lunches. (8) Hurri-Kanes again!

Civic Minded Citizens

SEATED: Joseph M. Harre and Clarence A. Leslie. STANDING: President Clarence E. Cornes, Vice-President Robert Fees, Henry H. Hennell, Gordon Hadfield, Charles E. Cleland, Secretary Harvey G. Berkhouse.

Remember when the roof over the auditorium was being repaired or when the athletic field was undergoing improvements? No doubt you just took it for granted, but actually this was part of the work of the Board of Education. The Board also gives the O.K. signal for trips such as the seniors make to Washington or band and orchestra members to district festivals.

Improving the facilities of the school by working with the administration, teachers, custodians, and students so that all can live and learn under the best possible conditions comprise their main duties. Always keeping in mind the betterment of the schools, the Board spent considerable time studying plans for merger with the neighboring schools but so far have taken no action.

The seven member board represents many different vocations. Clarence Cornes is manager of the local A and P Supermarket; Joseph Harre, editor of the Kane Republican; the Rev. Clarence Leslie, pastor of the Lutheran Church; Dr. Charles Cleland, local physician; and Robert Fees, druggist.

Tavy Summersgill '27, insurance agent, and Harold Johnson '38, associated with Olympic Luggage, joined the group this year. Henry Hennell and Gordon Hadfield retired from the Board after serving fourteen and seven years respectively.

A Guiding Hand Along the Way

GLENNIS H. RICKERT

Superintendent

Recently a person wrote asking me to verify the fact that she had taught in Kane. She stated, "I'll never forget the walk through that beautiful park." Many visitors remark on the beautiful surroundings of the school. Those of us who spend years here cannot help but be affected by the natural beauty which the Park holds. Each season elicits a response which charms the observer and gives him good cause to be alive.

It is good to be remembered, liked, and enjoyed by old friends and new acquaintances. We can be, nor need we wait for some season's touch. Our charm is under our control. A pleasant mien, a smile, a kindly word, a helping hand, an interest in the other person lend a beauty to the world that transcends all the Park itself supplies.

THELMA BLOOM

Secretary to Mr. Rickert

Lucky is the student who enters the superintendent's office and is greeted by Miss Thelma Bloom, a friendly and cheerful secretary.

Aside from her secretarial duties, Miss Bloom dispenses aspirin to needy persons, acts as a postal clerk, trains an office practice girl, and presents pay checks.

Forceful and Resourceful

PAUL R. MILLER

Principal

Natural resources have a way of seeming insignificant because we accept them as a matter of fact. We look at a tree and decide that its worth is not very great even though, when we ponder, it becomes plain that much of our progress can be traced to the use of forest products.

Similarly human resources do not always command our respect. We minimize the worth of one individual. We fail to realize that the moral integrity of our nation depends on the moral integrity of a hundred fifty million people. The peace of the world rests in the love of peace in the hearts of two and a half billion people. Each person who dynamically lives for a better world can start a chain reaction that has social and spiritual significance for all mankind.

Paul R. Miller

GLORIA NASMAN - JACK GILFERT

Secretaries to Mr. Miller

Gloria and Jack, both seniors, helped keep the administrative wheels in the principal's office well oiled. Their duties include clerical work, secretarial duties, and in general, all the work that must be handled in an office.

Gloria and Jack cheerfully and willingly help anyone whenever possible.

Rich in background, training, and experience, Kane High's faculty is well qualified to fulfill its responsibilities both in the classroom and in extracurricular activities.

Paul Mowery, a member of the commercial department, is on leave of absence working for his master's degree at the University of Southern California. Stanley Lyganosky left Kane High early in the school year to take up work with the F.B.I.

As Well As Individual Advancement

(1) Teachers enjoy social get together. (2) Superintendent and Mrs. Rickert entertain faculty at a Christmas party. (3) These smiling ladies, Mrs. Lee Gibson, Mrs. Mary Truman, Mrs. Gladys Gibson, and Mrs. Alice Dyne, are responsible for the appetizing lunches. (4) Principal Paul Miller glances over his morning mail. (5) Bus drivers chat while waiting for the 3:06 rush. (6) Custodians Elies Anderson, Chris Christenson, and Axel Anderson take time out for picture. (7) At the end of the day Starky takes down the stars and stripes.

Library and English Provide Basic Tools

With its 14,122 volumes, 41 periodicals, and 2 newspapers, the library serves the needs of its 2250 borrowers.

English students read American and English literature, wrote themes and term papers, presented oral reports, and listened to recordings.

Library is headquarters for reference and research.

Recordings help seniors appreciate literature.

Social Studies Encourage Good Citizenship

Dates, battles, statesmen, inventions, government, and politics all added to the general confusion of the average history student. However, current events, debates, reports, speakers, and field trips offered a change in the routine.

Geography students plot a great circle course.

Vocational Arts Prepare for Future Responsibilities

The shop boys did chiefly woodwork although they made a considerable number of articles from leather, plastic, and metal. Some of them leaned toward the furniture line and turned out excellent furnishings that found places in many classrooms and homes. The boys made aluminum dishes and ash trays by spinning the metal on a wood lathe, jewelry and trinkets by art metal casting.

The eighth and ninth grade mechanical drawing classes learned to recognize, handle, and care for the drawing equipment. They did sketching, lettering, and simple layouts. The older boys made more advanced and intricate drawings. Some even ventured into the architectural field.

Drafting students prepare assembly drawings.

Advanced home economics demonstrate how to prepare and serve a luncheon.

"Golly, that smells good!" It seemed that almost everyone said that as he passed the home ec kitchen when the girls were making cookies or other mouth-watering delicacies. What's more, the food not only smelled good; it tasted delicious! (Well, usually.) Then too, their talents showed up in textile painting and in making pedal pushers, circular skirts, dresses, weskits and skirts.

Science Uncovers the Knowledge of Tomorrow

With such a wide variety, general science, biology, composite science, chemistry, and physics, almost everyone found a science that interested him. Many students were amazed to discover how fascinating the study of plants and bugs could be. When the chemistry classes made rotten eggs (hydrogen sulfide) they were about the only people in school who weren't bothered by the odor. Electricity, heat, inertia, and other elements of physical science kept the physics students occupied in intense study all year. The increased emphasis on science places greater importance on these courses for all students who hope to succeed in this scientific age.

Chem students now and then flood the second floor with penetrating odors.

Monty explains how a line perpendicular to a plane is perpendicular to all lines contained in a plane. Simple, isn't it?

Mathematics — the downfall of some students, the shining glory of others. Many who were not mathematically inclined stopped with Algebra I or general math; others fell by the wayside after the rigors of plane geometry; most of the remaining math students called it quits with Algebra II; hats off to the survivors who conquered Monty's trig and solid!

Physical Education Promotes Wholesome Outlook

Despite the moans and groans, over 40 girls proved that they were capable of passing all the rugged tumbling tests. As usual, basketball, volleyball, and soccer ranked as the most popular activities.

Girls in gym class demonstrate various tumbling maneuvers.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Longshore, the freshmen and juniors received their biennial physical checkups. Dr. McGhee made the general examinations, and Dr. Bovard handled the dental inspections. Hearing tests administered by Mrs. Longshore pointed out the students with auditory difficulties. Later in the year, all seniors and freshmen had chest x-rays taken as a tuberculosis precaution.

Under Vic's guidance boys show the correct way to use the half nelson from referee's position on the mat.

The boys' gym is a place of bustling activity. The first half of the year was spent in developing co-ordination and he-man muscles; the second half, learning the fundamentals of precision marching, wrestling and field and track.

Music and Art Develop Cultural Appreciation

Miss Donovan kept her art classes busy with various projects which included making plaster of Paris and wooden plaques, papier-mache faces and waste baskets. They also drew designs, did lettering, and made posters and Christmas cards.

Miss Donovan explains how to put the finishing touches on papier-mache masks.

A new instrument found a place in Kane High when Miss Dalrymple introduced the autoharp to her eighth and ninth grade music classes. With it she taught them chording and the underlying rhythm. In addition the students examined the piano and several other instruments to discover where the music comes from and why. Vocal music wasn't neglected, either, with emphasis placed on harmony singing.

Sue strikes the chord on autoharp as the rest tune up for Jacob's Ladder.

Woodwinds iron out musical difficulties in sectionals under the direction of Mr. Stewart.

Weak spots in band and orchestra pieces were ironed out during Thursday sectional rehearsals. The annual spring concert proved that the time spent in striving for perfection was most worthwhile.

Commercial Course Trains for Efficiency

"Asdf space jkl; space." At last the keyboard was mastered, and the typing students began to make sense with their machines. Through daily practice and timed-writings, the typists quickly increased their speed. Although some took the course for practical reasons, many will use their skill in their future secretarial work.

Don lines up his paper under Miss McCamey's supervision.

Practical experience plus on-the-job training benefited the members of Miss McCamey's office practice class. They learned to file, type stencils, and operate the dictaphone and adding machines. During the second semester, they put their knowledge to work when many of them obtained jobs in local offices.

Pat, Charlotte, and Maurice get practical training by using the dictaphone, calculator, and filing cabinet.

Terms such as debits and credits, assets and liabilities may be puzzling to the majority of students but not to the bookkeeping classes who learned to enter them properly in ledgers. The advanced class kept the books and handled all the money for the cafeteria.

Students get actual practice in bookkeeping by taking care of all cafeteria accounts.

Practical and Safety Education

"Now the first thing to remember is to shut off the water supply." With these instructions the eighth and ninth grade girls proceeded to change washers in leaky faucets. Adjusting window shades and sharpening knives were also part of their six-weeks' course of shop in preparation to become efficient housewives.

Girls sharpen knives. So far, so good; no sliced fingers.

Almost as good as Mom makes, at least the home ec boys thought as they ate the food they prepared. They also learned to darn socks, sew on buttons, and press trousers.

Fellows learn how to keep that well-groomed look.

The most patient and courageous men in school were Mr. Turner and Mr. Lowry. Day after day they sat in the dual control training car teaching students the fundamentals of safe driving. Thanks to their efforts, parking and backing around corners were not quite so terrifying to the new drivers.

Kellar is endeavoring to park between the red flags and still leave them standing.

The seniors knew no limits to activities in their realization that this was it, their last year at Kane High. Walking out first from assembly, they knew their dreams had come true, they were seniors at last.

The old saying, the more the merrier, proved true when the Mt. Jewett seniors joined the ranks. Although everything was new and different to the newcomers, they readily made friends and participated in numerous school affairs.

Under the leadership of Gregg Turner, the class started the year by shattering all previous magazine sales records. The play tickets they sold added up to a full house for two performances of "Best Foot Forward."

Realizing that all too soon classes would be over, the seniors actually seemed to enjoy working together. They made field trips and scheduled special speakers throughout the year.

The seniors were reminded of their status when the time came to pose for portraits for the yearbook, to get measured for caps and gowns, and to order name cards and announcements.

Many received outstanding honors during the year. Cleon attended the State Orchestra; Don, Ed, Keith, Max, Larry, and Dave helped maintain the basketball championship; Joanna, Barbara Dee, Bill, and Max attended the New York Herald Tribune Conference on "Military Training--Bridge or Gap?"

With May came English term papers, and everyone worked hard on these, meeting the deadline by narrow margins. The murals in room 26 show the work of Jacki and Betty, class artists.

The greatest wish, however, became a reality when they left on their never-to-be-forgotten Washington trip. The days spent in touring the nation's capital proved all too short, as did the entire year.

June brought vespers, commencement, and the final day of school. And on the seniors, standing solemn-faced as they sang the Alma Mater for the last time as members of K.H.S., dawned the significance of this milestone in their young lives. Although they had come to the end of a perfect day, they realized they must wake, ready to meet the dawn of a tomorrow.

The Kane Wolves, coached by Bob Williams and Matt Rausch, developed into a hard playing, well rounded combination of which Kane could be proud.

The opening game at Ridgway produced the brightest moment of the season. Here the Wolves overcame an early 13 point lead to win the game 21-13. This was the first Kane win over Ridgway in eight years. The next two games were played at home with St. Marys and Emporium. Both teams were greatly outclassed and Kane substitutes saw a lot of action.

After a two weeks' lay off the locals ventured to Johnsonburg where the Ramblers won the contest 26-20. During this game the Wolves were penalized 115 yards and Johnsonburg 100, and three Wolves' starters received injuries.

Brookville falling into the claws of the Wolves met defeat. In the homecoming game the injury ridden Wolves were unable to stop Bird of the Titusville Rockets. However the Wolves were too much for their new rival, Reynoldsville, and handed them a defeat to the tune of 45-9.

Kane journeyed to Warren to play the final game on a snow covered field. Although all the injured players were back in the starting lineup, the powerful Dragons just plowed them under.

Although the J.V.'s were outscored and outplayed in every game, they were never outfought. These fellows under the coaching of Rudy Federici have made the first step toward varsity football.

Under the capable coaching of Matt Rausch, the 1951-52 edition of the Kane High Wolves successfully completed the season with a 15-6 record.

Coach Rausch was met with 108 eager hopefuls, and from these he chose 10 boys to represent the Kane High Varsity on the hardwood. These ten were composed of four senior returning lettermen along with two other seniors, two juniors, and two sophomores.

The season opened with four warm-up games with some of the toughest class A teams in this section. While competing in the Mountain League, which they easily won for the eighth consecutive year, the Wolves were downed by a strong aggregation from Ridgway to snap their 50 league game winning streak; but with a determined attitude they finished the circuit with flying colors. The Wolves then fell to Bradford, Brookville, and again to Bradford, the latter two in heart breaking overtime contests.

Upon entering the P.I.A.A. play-offs, the Wolves soundly trounced DuBois but fell for the third time to Bradford, consequently eliminating them from further competition.

The Wolves outscored their opponents 1,278 to 988 and were led in this field by Ed Rudler who hit for 262. He was closely followed by Pete Weiser with 250.

At the close of the season Ed Rudler and Keith Weiser were named on the first team of the Mountain League All-Stars; Rudler made the second team of the Northwestern Pennsylvania All-Stars and honorable mention on All-State.

Rudler, Weiser, Dave Baumann, Larry Bush, John MacEwen, and Don Flockerzi, all seniors, pulled the curtains in their high school basketball careers with a bang-up showing.

It was 19 in a row for the Junior Varsity as they dealt the Bradford Owlets a 50-42 shellacking in a thrilling game, the last one of the season. It was the first victory in over 7 years for the Kane junior team on the Bradford home court.

Coach Rudy Federici completed the perfect season using only one change in his lineup for the entire season. When Manny Gerhart was moved up to varsity, Don Novosel moved into his place and played center assisted by Billy McDade and John Migliazzo at forwards and Jim Smart and Bob Berlin teaming at guards.

This season's track team had a challenging record to uphold. Class B District champions for three consecutive years, Kane moved to Class A competition in 1951 and took that crown from Bradford. With this impressive record to defend, Coaches Vic Gentilman and Pat Lantz built this year's squad around a nucleus of only six returning lettermen, D. Baumann, L. Bush, J. MacEwen, C. Nelson, B. Rice, and R. Tilberg.

Before the first meet of the season had taken place the following squad members, in addition to returning lettermen, showed promise of being place winners this season:

For the third year, a junior high squad composed of freshmen and 8th graders participated in meets with Smethport.

SEATED: J. Giltfert, B. Kulka, T. Carlson, M. Hess, D. Flockerzi, G. Manno, F. Nicolazzo, J. Migliazzo. STANDING: Mr. Miller, Mr. Lantz, Mrs. Turner, Mr. Rausch, Mr. Ickes, Mr. Montgomery, Mr. Williams, Mr. Gentilman, Mr. Federici.

"The Athletic Council has kindly requested that fans remain seated. Girls will be around with candy and hot dogs." How often similar requests came over the loud speaker at football games! The refreshment booth made its initial appearance in September, and during every game A.A. members scurried from cafeteria to the stand in an effort to satisfy the hungry crowd.

The wave of a magic wand didn't bring forth the full athletic program Kane fans enjoyed. The council members began their work early in the year as they made preparations for football, basketball, and track. Such pecuniary matters as bills for equipment, guarantees to visiting teams, and fees for referees were all in the day's work.

Untiringly they worked at the gates, sold refreshments, and counted the receipts after each game.

Then began the ever-popular basketball season. The council members were happy to have an opportunity to work indoors for a change. But, oh, how well they remember those bitter cold nights when fans unceasingly filed into the gym letting in cold blasts of wind and snow. An exciting game of basketball, however, soon compensated for the damages.

Following track season, the council closed its books, marking another successful chapter in Kane High's sports program.

Keen Intramural Competition

(1) Managers Zampogna and Folke call time in a basketball game. Coach Gentilman looks on. (2) Roger snaps the ball in intramural football game. (3) Intramural foul shooting champs—McDade, sophomore; Cooley, eighth; Lake, senior. (4) Intramural badminton champs—Colella and Collins, juniors; Gustafson and Anderson, sophs; Zampogna and Folke, frosh.

Sportsmanship! This could very well be the motto of Boys Intramurals. The intramural program is set up to provide activities for all boys in school and to promote competitive team spirit, leadership, and sportsmanship. Early in September the intramural program started off with 125 boys in fourteen teams, trying for touchfootball championship honors. In the Senior League the Yellow Jackets and the Put Puts ended their schedule in a tie with six wins and two losses each. The Yellow Jackets eked out a win over the Put Puts in the championship play-off. In the Junior League the Irish were crowned champions with an undefeated record of nine wins.

Foul shooting was next with 85 boys shooting to determine individual champions. The champs, D. Cooley, R. Danielson, W. McDade, R. Swedenjelm, and R. Lake, made 19, 19, 20, 18, and 17 respectively out of 25 shots.

Basketball had a record breaking number of boys with 155 in 22 teams in three leagues. In the Senior League the Junkheads and Whiz Kids were tied for first place with a 6-1 record. The Whiz Kids defeated the Junkheads in the play-off. The Leroys of the Freshman League were undefeated. In the Eighth Grade League a play-off between the Hawks and the Olympions was held with the Hawks winning.

Wrestling, along with the track events, is an individual activity. Forty-five boys took part in this ancient sport, considered the oldest organized sport in the world.

An added activity this year was the badminton doubles.

Volleyball with 108 boys participating and track and field events with cross country, broad jump, high jump, and shot-put rounded out the year's activities.

Sports-Minded Girls

The school year looked bright as 200 sports-minded girls eagerly turned out for the after school intramurals under the guidance of Mrs. Gregg Turner. The first scheduled games were of wall soccer, played only by those who were willing to give and take plenty of hard knocks in a very fast game.

Basketball, the most popular sport, drew a tremendous number of girls anxious to get a try at the basket. For most girls the time allowed for basketball was far too short and over much too quickly to satisfy them.

Volleyball quickly followed suit with an equal number participating in this over- the-net see-saw type of game. The next to the last intramural sport was badminton, a game calling for quality of skill and a quantity of sportsmanship. Driving the bird over the net in point-winning shots was the boast of the eventual champs. With the spring came the outdoor sport of softball, thus bringing to a close the year's schedule.

The program provided wholesome and stimulating recreation for the girls who went out for the pleasure and enjoyment they derive from taking part in a good, clean game of competition.

(1) A rugged game of soccer proves exhilarating as the ball heads their way. (2) Managers, Jan and Mary Ellen, confer with Mrs. T. for latest on the sports agenda for Girls' Intramurals. (3) Up in the air go Andy and Fran as another fun-sparked game of basketball gets underway. (4) Jo, Kathy, Mary Ann, and Kay aim for the bull's-eye as they try their skill at archery. (5) Keep your eye on the birdie. Girls enjoy a lively game of badminton.

"Does anyone have a suggestion from the homerooms?"

"It was suggested in my homeroom that the cafeteria serve more ham salad instead of peanut butter sandwiches for lunch."

This is the kind of discussion that goes on when Student Council meets in Room 8 on Tuesday mornings. The delegates selected from the homerooms practice student government by making decisions that directly affect their school life.

This group planned many worthwhile projects during its busy year. Among these were the March of Dimes, CARE Packages, Library Tag Day, and an orientation program for new students entering Kane High. Of course dances entered into the schedule too, with the annual Snow Ball leading the list.

Early in the year Clarence, Don, and Marjorie attended the Student Council Convention at Kittanning and brought back many helpful suggestions, which were presented in assembly along with two skits given by members of the Council on manners in the halls and cafeteria.

This year a constitutional committee worked on rewriting the outdated constitution.

Student Council takes care of all complaints from teachers and students alike to help make the school run as smoothly as possible. These activities of Student Council help unify school spirit and make K.H.S. a more nearly complete and compact working unit.

Mid the glow of candlelight in a solemn and impressive induction ceremony, fourteen seniors and six juniors became members of the National Honor Society. After receiving lighted candles these students pledged themselves to uphold the high purposes of the society, striving in every way by word and deed to make its ideals the ideals of their school and life.

Membership in this society is the highest honor a Kane High School student may achieve. To be eligible one must rank high scholastically and at the same time be active in the extra-curricular activities. All who became members have been judged outstanding in character, service, and leadership by the active members of the society and a group representing the faculty.

Although limited to five members during the first semester, the Society was quite active. They added holiday spirit at Christmas by decorating the halls and the cafeteria. They sponsored a sunshine basket for Monte Montgomery, a Kane High freshman stricken by polio. The response of the entire student body was so generous that Monte received a watch instead of fruit and nuts.

Early in March the National Honor held a tea for the members, their parents, and the faculty. Later in the spring the informal initiation and dinner meeting and the annual picnic made the National Honor one happy family.

Don pledges to uphold the principles of N.H.S.

Just as the tree grows from the small seedling, this annual has grown from the little things that go to make up school life. Early last spring as the trees were bursting into leaf and the pond was reflecting this change, the idea of Evergreen Park as a theme for the Hurri-Kane began to take root.

What a disappointment when school began in September to find the pond bone dry! The staff hoped for rain, but it wasn't until late in the fall that the pond mirrored life around Kane High. Then too, the Park Board began to replace the rustic bridges that had become such familiar landmarks. However, the staff continued planning layouts and then changing them, taking and retaking pictures, trimming and mounting for the engraver, writing and rewriting copy, and then unifying the work of each part of the staff into one complete book.

The Sponsors' Pages have again successfully replaced the advertising section. The Kane, Ludlow, and Mt. Jewett business people have generously responded with their support in helping to make this book possible.

Finally by pruning here and there, the staff has captured by picture and story scenes which they hope will help you recall memories of classrooms, athletic games, dances, plays, as well as those little things that help to make school life enjoyable.

Another edition of Hi-Life rolls off the press.

Something was always going on in the Hi-Life office. The paper that appeared without fail each Wednesday and Friday afternoon was only part of this bustling activity. As soon as one issue rolled off the mimeograph, work was begun on the next—more news written, more stencils typed, more proofs read.

Besides gathering news for the Hi-Life, staff members sent weekly Kane High news reports to the Kane Republican and the Bradford Era; they wrote a weekly summary of grade school news for the Republican, and they supplied the speech class with news for their Friday broadcasts over Radio Station WKBI. Then, too, Hi-Lives were mailed to about a hundred G. I.'s, alumni, and other schools.

Early in the fall Hi-Life was host to the district school press conference. About fifty representatives from area school papers attended the round table discussions. Joseph M. Harre, editor of the Kane Republican, was the guest speaker.

Notified early in the year that their paper was judged All-American by NSPA, this staff really worked to maintain the standard. The editors racked their brains and combed the school for feature stories; they pulled no punches in their editorials; and, in general, they tried to get all the news of all Kane High all the time.

Here is a group of teen-agers who are not going to fall behind in this atomic age. Under the leadership of Dalton G. Van Ormer, these industrious students learn about the intricacies of physics and chemistry and have a good time while doing it. Phy-Chy aims to give students an opportunity to increase individual interests in science and to explore and develop these interests.

Among the outstanding programs were "What to Do If A-Bombs Fall" by Jim Lindquist and a demonstration of the preparation and properties of gases by Bob Mitchell and Harold Pier.

A field trip to the Corning Glass Center in Corning, New York, highlighted the year's activities. Here the members observed at close range the actual process of glass making, one of the industries which put into practice the principles learned in Phy-Chy.

Yes, these young folks are going to teach. Playing school is fast becoming a reality for them. Substituting in the classroom when a teacher is attending a conference or helping in the homeroom and study hall when the need arises is giving these members of the Mable Studebaker Chapter of Future Teachers of America some first hand knowledge.

During their regular meetings, experienced teachers discussed the rewards and handicaps encountered in the pursuit of teaching as a life's work and the fields open in the work at the present time. Then, too, the F.T.A. members under direction of C. Stuart Edwards made a study of the colleges which offer the best opportunities.

Early last fall Elaine Anderson was among the speakers at the F.T.A. conference at Altoona.

Promote and Picture Friendly Relations

What's new around Kane High? The school chest, any Junior Red Cross member would without hesitation tell you. This chest is really a single oversize gift box packed for the children in some foreign country. It carries with it the feeling of friendship and good will from students of Kane High.

What's in it? Pencils, erasers, crayons, and note paper for school; toothbrushes paste, soap, and wash cloths for health; marbles, jumping ropes, or jacks for recreation; ribbons or bows for dress up.

These Juniors conducted a membership drive early in December and then settled down to work on writing a skit to acquaint the students with the chest project. The Council under the supervision of Miss Betty Eaton served doughnuts and coffee to the Senior Red Cross in the kick-off drive.

A posed figure, the click of a shutter, the flash of a bulb, and the informative voice of Robert Carson as he unfolds the wonders and opportunities in the field of photography, all take place in the auditorium every other Tuesday.

The Camera Club promotes a deeper interest in photography and affords competent instruction in photographic techniques. Dr. Milo Cox, school physician, participated in some of the meetings with demonstrations on film developing, printing, and enlarging. The west hall hummed with voiced criticisms and exclamations about the many excellent amateur shots among the Eastman Kodak Company's exhibit.

The good times shared, the helpful things learned, and the feeling of belonging to this group will bring back pleasant memories.

Some Prefer to Fish and Hunt

Remember that fish that got away? Or the twelve-point buck looking right into your eye when your gun jammed? Or the other hundred and one tall tales in Hunting and Fishing Club?

In addition to swapping experiences these sportsmen under the leadership of Curtis Ickes become more familiar with the game laws and the wild life of Pennsylvania. Always on the lookout for some thing to promote interest in field and stream sports and to aid in conservation of wild life, the fellows built turkey feeders in the woods and kept them filled with corn. Then they helped the game commission stock fish in nearby streams and catch rabbits around town for restocking outside the borough.

The high praise the club received from the commission made them realize the worthwhileness of their activities.

So enthusiastic have the Junior Sportsmen become in pursuing the most popular sports hobby in this mountainous region that it became necessary to make two divisions of this group according to classes.

Making a four by four foot scale map showing the hunting grounds and fishing streams of Kane and the surrounding areas became the year's project for the eighth graders. The map also shows the location of the turkey feeders. Making posters portraying important game laws of Pennsylvania made ninth graders more familiar with hunting and fishing laws.

Cooperating with the State Department of Game Preservation, the boys under the supervision of Robert H. Williams built and filled turkey feeders and trapped rabbits. The kill during the past season proved the value of this work.

Others Aim for the Bull's-Eye

Seventy members! This astounding number bespeaks the popularity of Small Arms School among the junior high school fellows.

Under the leadership of William R. Miller, this enthusiastic group of boys gathered to learn the details and safety of using firearms. The first few meetings were used for detailed instruction on parts of the rifle, safety rules for handling of small arms, safety and accuracy in firing.

Using wooden rifles the boys learned the parts of a gun, the long and tedious process of getting into the correct position for shooting, how to sight, how to adjust the sling, and how to fire in the prone position. Sometimes during the practice sessions, much to the consternation of the fellows, the barrels of the guns fell off; however it was safe fun.

Then came the big moment! The first meeting on the range! How eagerly the riflemen crawled into the shooting position and adjusted the sling! Then came the order to fire the final squeeze. What a deafening bang!

Since the range accommodates but eight fellows at a time, each shooter had to make the best of his opportunity. However, every fellow had his chance to fire. Some made out very well the first time; others required more practice to find their eye. What a satisfied feeling it was now to slide out of the pit and pull aching arms from the sling!

It was a lot of fun trying to shoot, and each rifleman has now a better know-how in the handling and use of the small bore rifle. All feel confident that what they have learned on the range will pay dividends. Then too, all the fellows who successfully complete Small Arms may become members of Junior Rifle Club.

Sharpshooters Reign Supreme

Monday evenings found these eighteen Junior Rifle Club members wending their way through the boys' locker rooms to the newly completed rifle range beneath the gym. Here under the guiding hand and ever watchful eye of Gregg G. Turner, these marksmen fire away at targets from the eight firing points on the range.

Since most of the fellows were old timers on the range, they knew that practice makes for perfection and that carelessness has no place where a gun is concerned.

They set their sights on learning not only how to shoot a rifle but also on how to handle firearms safely. The self-control and muscular-control so necessary for accurate shooting and the proper care and cleaning of the rifle also came under careful study.

The boys continually practice the various positions for firing the rifle. They learn to shoot from the prone, the sitting, and the standing positions. To become good marksmen these fellows know they must be able to make high scores from all three positions, and Junior Riflemen have found that from diligent practice comes accurate shooting.

Kridler, E. Asel, J. Ferranto, R. Epler, G. Knapp. PIANO: Miss Dalrymple, D. Chew.

"Chatanooga shoeshine boy; he charges you—a penny a kiss, a penny a hug." If you don't believe it, just ask the members of Girls' Chorus. These girls will know, for they have been arranging this zany medley.

A more serious side of music also prevailed in many of the eighth period song sessions as the girls attempted to interpret the artistic and spiritual message of music. Such numbers as "The Lord's Prayer," "The Lord Is My Shepherd," "Land of Hope and Glory," and "By the Bend of the River" really showed what part singing and harmonizing these girls could do.

Three part harmony, soprano, alto, and bass, brought forth the best in the Mixed Chorus every Wednesday morning under the direction of Miss Mary Alice Dalrymple. Sigmund Romberg's "Your Land and My Land" and Harry Woods' "Strumming" were the special favorites of this group. These singers sang purely for the pleasure they experienced in singing together.

The girls closed the final curtain on the year's work when they sang for the vesper services in June.

"Sally in Our Alley" tops the list for these singing sophomores. During this their second season, the boys have sung for local organizations as well as for school assemblies.

Marjorie accompanies the Singing Sophomores, Bill, Ron, Jack and Bruce.

CHARLES STEWART — Director

Snappy Marches and Melodious Strains

A whistle shrilled, a baton twirled, and Kane High's marching band, resplendent in red uniforms with sunlight reflecting on the polished instruments, playing "Our Chief" made its first full dress appearance on the football field. This finished performance was the result of two weeks of strenuous practice every morning. During the football season, martial music continued to play the major role during rehearsals.

The high praise given the field outfit, which played for every home game as well as the game at Johnsonburg, reflected in more enthusiasm among the members at the tough rehearsals that Mr. Stewart put the musicians through.

Mt. Jewett's contribution brought the membership of the band to 63, an all-time high; this made for fuller instrumentation. During February the band presented three concerts, one in Ludlow, one in Kane, and one in Mt. Jewett. The program consisted of light popular numbers such as "Andalucia" and "Mexican Overture."

Continuing the program of developing musicians who assist in cultural development of school and community, the band settled down to prepare for the annual spring concert, the high light of the season. This appearance gave the band the chance to play semi-classical as well as novelty numbers. Included in the program were "Russian Sailors' Dance," "1812 Overture," and "The Marines' Hymn."

The band ended its year of activities as it had started them, a field outfit, this time in the Memorial Day Parade.

"May we have an A, please? Strings, start tuning." And in a short time this confusion became the soft soothing strains of strings aided by woodwinds and blasts from the brass and percussion which indicated that the Orchestra was well on its way in another of those Tuesday and Friday second period sessions.

The 35 members were interested in Orchestra for the sake of music, and participation developed the taste for better music. Orchestra rehearsals were by no means dull. Senior members conducting a number or two with Mr. Stewart playing in the violin section added variety to practice sessions.

The annual spring concert was the Orchestra's first public appearance. The program offered a variety of numbers including "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," "Theme from Beethoven's Second Symphony," and two excerpts from Tschaiikowsky's "Sixth Symphony."

The final activity of the year, one which graduates will remember, was the Orchestra's rendition of the familiar "March from Aida" as the seniors solemnly took their places for commencement exercises.

What young Thespian hasn't dreamed of performing behind footlights, designing scenery or costumes, or even directing a production?

Thespian Club attempts to aid these would-be actors in preparation for the day when they may be discovered. Some club members really enjoy the meetings; and at the same time they develop such qualities as poise, stage presence, a pleasing voice, as well as an appreciation for plays, movies, and other cultural presentations.

Through projects and programs, consisting of quizzes, radio skits, and one-act plays, the Thespians under leadership of Robert Smith learn the fundamentals of acting and stage craft.

What a thrill members of the club had when they went to Bradford to see "Death of a Salesman."

"Come on! Get into the act! Only a few days before this goes on the stage!" A play without work? The ninth grade girls--no boys had the courage to show up--will tell you there is no such thing.

Junior Dramatics has no dead wood. There is a part for everyone, and everyone does her part. This might be acting, doing make-up, collecting costumes, preparing settings, or directing.

Remember the poor psychological lady in "Seeing's Believing"! Was she or wasn't she wearing shoes? "First Rehearsal," a play within a play, showed just what can be accomplished when the girls put enough effort into it.

Although the club did not get under way until December, these girls under direction of Paul R. Miller proved that persistence pays off.

The Curtain Rises, the Play Is On

"Buckle down, Winsocki, buckle down," echoed through the halls following practice sessions of "Best Foot Forward." To eliminate wasting the time at practice, all members agreed upon a fine system for late-comers, the fine being a penny for each minute late. Everyone got into that act; Director Smith was no exception. By opening night, Evelyn Kahle, capable student director, had the grand total of $2.10.

A star-stricken student invited a famous Hollywood actress to the annual prom. Much to his amazement she accepted! Fireworks began for Bud when his steady girl appeared on the scene; but bedlam really broke loose when the girl friends joined in the fracas.

The applause indicated that the seniors had rung down the curtain on another success.

"I'm from the local restaurant. Does anyone have a cup of flour?" It wasn't one of Ronnie's lines, but Coach Ralph Lantz had sent him onstage to convince the cast that anything can happen in a play. Things did happen in the "Life of the Party." The flu epidemic, play-off games, rides for Jewett boys were only minor incidents.

The play centers around the Hughes' drab daughter who suddenly becomes the life of the party. The family, having recently moved to town, is intent upon making new friends and good connections.

Opening night seemed far away, but March 20 and 21 soon rolled around. There were anxious moments, Eileen's ice bag disappeared before the third act Thursday night. Harriet didn't have a vase to throw Friday night, but it was fun right up to the final curtain calls!
